Flaherty Park Community Center is a recreational facility primarily used for Wake Forest Parks and Recreation Department programs. The center is open to citizens of all ages for open play basketball and volleyball. Visitors can also use the game room.

The center is located in J.B. Flaherty Park which emcompasses 100 acres. The park includes ball fields, tennis courts, open space, a playground, a stocked pond, a dog park and picnic facilities.

History: In 1993, the town purchased 23 acres to build ball fields for its growing athletic program. Over the following years, the Flaherty family donated the rest of the 100 acres that are now J.B. Flaherty Park. In 2002, the town opened the community center which includes the first town-owned gymnasium.
